EESTEC is a great opportunity to explore the world around you. It gives you the chance to discover undiscovered abilities within you. This is how I felt after I participated in my first event of EESTEC. You get familiar with many different cultures and many great people. One makes new friends and contacts with people who are of the same field of studies. I participated in the international motivation weekend in Zurich. The event I participated was not a conference but an opportunity for enjoyment and discovering Switzerland so basically party all day and night.

I reached Zurich on Thursday 22nd May and met with many new great friends. From there we directly went to the park to relax and then at night had a great tram party. It had every ingredient of a good party which included music and dancing people around you. We also had traditional Swiss dishes which were of course very delicious. The next day we went to Rütliwiese which was a very, very beautiful place. Lake and mountains with snow on top even in summers. Our hotel was at the top of the mountain so we did some hiking a couple of times. We did barbecue at the beach. In the end we all had to go back to our respective countries but not before we managed to have great memories of a great trip.
